Mr. A. T. Kemp, teacher of horticulture and who has charge of the grounds at the Olds School of Agriculture, gave an interesting illustrated lecture on "Home Beautification" on Tuesday evening of last week under the auspices of the Junior Board of Trade.

Lantern slides which had been obtained from Ottawa, showed the landscaping of grounds surrounding both modest and elaborate homes and Mr. Kemp commented on the pictures.

He described the various kinds of shrubs and hedges, which were suitable for local conditions and showed what the difference a little effort could make in the appearance of a home.

Mr. Kemp also spoke of the work of the O.S.A. Experimental Union, who were distributing flower and vegetable seed, perennial plants, shrubs, grains and grasses which had been grown at the Olds School. He pointed out that each member could select four collections for a fee of 50c and that selections should be made before April 8th.

The slides were shown by Rev. J. R. Geeson, who also provided the lantern for the occasion.

Mr. Carlton Leeson occupied the chair and on behalf of the Board of Trade thanked both Mr. Kemp and Mr. Geeson for a very interesting evening.

Didsbury Hospital Applies for 'Iron Lung'

The Didsbury Hospital will make an application for one of the "Iron Lungs" which are being donated to all hospitals in the Empire by Lord Nuffield, the automobile magnate, of Cowley, England, it was decided at a meeting of the Hospital Board held on Thursday last.

The letter making the offer pointed out that the iron lung which is generally associated with infantile paralysis could be used for other respiratory disorders.

The meeting was the organization meeting and Councillor Rieder was introduced as the new representative for the town. The other members are Mrs. J. H. Harder, for the town; Councillor and Mrs. Rupp, for Mountain View M.D.; Councillor and Mrs. Hogg, for Westerdale M.D.

Councillor Rupp was elected as chairman of the board.

The financial statement was presented and showed that the cost of operation of the hospital for 1938 was $7,941.92.

The statistical statement showed that there had been 321 patients admitted to the hospital during the year as follows:

Unity Association Formed at Olds

Well known in medical circles throughout Alberta and a highly esteemed citizen of Olds for many years, Dr. C. C. Hartman was elected president of the Olds Unity Association at a mass meeting held recently in the Elks' Hall.

The meeting was attended by representatives from Trochu and Huxley on the east and Sundre on the west, and standing room in the hall was at a premium. Former Conservatives, Liberals, U.F.A.'s and Social Crediters gathered en masse to hear and take a part in the new Unity movement that is gaining steady ground in Olds constituency.

Fraser Elliot, Dominion income tax commissioner, told the Commons public accounts committee the John Inglis Co.'s Bren gun contracts would produce a net profit of 4.2 per cent of total costs, after income tax had been paid on both the British and Canadian contracts.

Are Interested in the Chukar Partridge

Russell Ady and Ken McCoy are taking interest in the five pair of Chukar partridge that were liberated by the Fish and Game Association two weeks ago on the Didsbury Game Preserve.

They went out last Thursday to see how they were getting along and were fortunate in actually seeing three pair and got definite track on a pair at the Jahnke place.

On Friday Charlie Foss telephoned that one of the birds had got into a barn on his place. The boys again went out and placed it in the location where other birds had been seen.

The committee will appreciate any reports regarding the birds from farmers in the district.

Future of Olds Elks In Doubt.

The future of the Olds Elks carrying on for next season is in doubt, but efforts will be made to get a sponsor for the team or making some arrangements with a team of the National Hockey League to adopt the Elks as a farm team. It was decided at the annual meeting of the club held Tuesday of last week.

The secretary's report showed that the expenses of the club during last season had amounted to some $16,000 and that there was a deficit on the season's operations of $80.00.

W. H. Miller was elected president and amongst the directors elected were Charles Mortimer and H. Morgan, of Didsbury.

Regular air conditioned equipment from the main line will replace the "Chinook" during the brief lay-off.

The three prizes in the local sweepstake which is run as a consolation to the Irish Sweepstake, were won by Mayor Dunkley, who dragged down first money, Councillor J. H. The three have been given quite a ribbing since the event and have been accused, good naturedly of course, of everything from fixing the draw to highway robbery.—Olds Gazette.

Bowden Store Robbed of $1,950

Thieves made a good strike at Bowden early Wednesday morning when they broke into M. Sestrap's store, blew the safe open, and took $1,950 in cash and fled. The glass in the front door was broken to gain entry. The safe door was blown by nitro-glycerine. Escape was made by use of a handcar, which was discarded just outside of Olds, and it is believed there were two men involved in the burglary.

Sestrap's store keeps considerable money on hand as it pays off for the grain elevators in the town. Constable Pattie, R.C.M.P., of Innisfail is investigating.

Boy Receives $770.00 For Baby Beef Steer.

Arthur Nead, a 15 year old member of the Olds Beef Calf Club, won the Championship of the junior baby beef class at the Calgary Stock Show on Monday with a Hereford steer which he fed and finished himself.

The steer weighed 770 lbs and Safeways Stores paid $1.00 per lb. for him at the sale. $770.00 is a tidy sum and Arthur's achievement is a credit to the Olds club.

Mountain View Sets Tax Rate

The municipal tax rate for the current year was set at 8 1/2 mills at the meeting of the Mountain View municipal council held at Olds on Saturday last. The school tax of 9 1/2 mills was set, covering the whole municipality in the area of the Olds School Division. The social service tax will again be 3 mills.

A by-law was passed to allow 10 per cent discount on current taxes paid before June 1; 7 per cent on current taxes paid before September 1; and the usual discount of 5 per cent on taxes paid before December 1st.

The estimate of expenditure was brought down and included an appropriation of $6,000 to be expended on roads. It was decided not to use the elevator-grader this year until crops in the district were practically assured.

A resolution was passed, instructing the secretary to prepare a list of lands which were subject to tax sale. The tax sale will probably be held about midsummer.

A delegation called on the council, asking that a road be constructed going north from the town of Olds about three quarters of a mile on the west of the track to the railroad crossing. It was pointed out that if this was done, farmers living north of Olds would avoid two railway crossings when going to town.

Councillor Dodd was appointed to accompany the delegation to meet the Olds town council, as 40 rods of the road would be within the town limits.

Reports were received from the Board of Review on three cases under the Farmers' Credit Arrangement Act. A report was also received of an old age pension being approved by the government.

Settlement Of Refugees

It would appear to be highly desirable that some further consideration be given to the manner in which Czecho-Slovakian, Hungarian and Jewish refugees dispossessed in German Sudetenland and other European territories since they came under Herr Hitler's suzerainty, are to be allowed to settle in this country, than has apparently been given to this problem to date.

Comparatively little information as to this movement, apparently planned for this spring, has been given to the public to date, either because the federal government has not completed its plans after its negotiation with the British government, or because it is not deemed desirable to announce details as yet.

If despatches to the daily press from Prague and Ottawa are authentic it is intended to bring to this country this spring approximately 3,000 Czecho-Slovakians, about 800 families; that "most of them are agriculturists"; that most, perhaps all of them have money; that some of them are to be settled in colonies with the Peace River country in Alberta and Northern Saskatchewan cited as probable destinations; that settlement of these newcomers will be left to the colonization departments of the trans-continental railways and that the movement is being undertaken with the co-operation of the provincial governments. In addition to that the Prague despatch also states that another group of 1,300 consisting largely of former Hungarian Socialists, most of them farmers, is also preparing to emigrate soon to an unannounced destination. Of this group, according to the cabled story, 500 are Jews.

A Different Picture

This is quite a different picture to that presented earlier in the winter when the question of making some provision for the settlement in Canada of dispossessed European nationals was first discussed and ventilated through the press of the country.

At that time the Western Canadian public was led to believe that consideration was being given to the transfer to this country of Czecho-Slovakian, Hungarian and Jewish professional men and small manufacturers and industrial workers. It was pointed out that these people were in a position to make a valuable contribution to the economic and industrial life of the country. They were to include medical men of high calibre, trained research workers in the field of chemistry and other sciences as well as men who were in a position to start industries which are little known or not practised at all in this country and which would give employment to others. They would not be in competition with established industry and some of them, it was represented, would bring with them substantial amounts of capital.

Now, however, it appears that Western Canada, at least, is to absorb, not professional men of high attainments and industrialists and industrial workers and research men, but refugee farmers who, under existing conditions will have to produce commodities of which there is a glut in the world markets or commodities which must be sold in restricted or non-existent local markets, if they are to do anything more than maintain a bare subsistence.

What the reaction of the governments of the two provinces most concerned will be to this latest development in European immigration plans, it is difficult to say at this time of writing, for presumably despite the announcement that settlement plans are to be carried out with the co-operation of the provincial governments, the governments of Saskatchewan and Alberta have not been consulted. Premier Aberhart was quoted as saying: "No agreement has been entered into by this government with any authority as to these people coming to Alberta. A fuller statement will be made when I have ascertained... the nature of the report." Premier Patterson of Saskatchewan told the newspaper reporters: "I know absolutely nothing about it. We've never been asked to take any by anyone."

Retarding Assimilation

The wisdom of bringing in more agriculturists to settle on Western Canadian farm lands, at least until such time as some of the major production and marketing problems show some sign of being resolved, is highly debatable and is seriously questioned in many quarters, but on the subject of the advisability of perfecting plans which provide for the settlement of non-English speaking peoples on the land in colonies there can be no two opinions in the west.

The great majority of the people of the west are agreed that the problems facing them can best be settled in a spirit of unification and this process of unity must necessarily be slowed up if nations are to be allowed to settle on land, forcing their own communities and delaying the progress of assimilation into a national entity. These people undoubtedly have many fine qualities, including evidently a passionate devotion to democratic ideals, otherwise they would not be in the unfortunate predicament in which they find themselves.

To that extent undoubtedly they are very desirable settlers, but it is also desirable once they have adopted this country as their home, that they absorb Canadian ideas and ideas as speedily as possible and this can best be done by settling them in such a manner that they must necessarily rub shoulders daily with established Canadians. Colonization in large settlements will retard this important development for many years, perhaps for decades, possibly for generations.

Because They Lost It

Settlers Coming From Sudeten Will Appreciate Their Liberty

Not one not even those political acrobats who denounce immigration in all its shapes and forms could quarrel with the decision of Ottawa to allow several hundred Sudeten German families to come to Canada this spring to settle on Canadian farms.

Each of these families will have at least $1,500, provided by the Czech government, and they must prove they are good farmers.

These people are "refugees" in one sense, but there is nothing shabby about this label for them. They fled the Sudeten area when the shadow of the Swastika fell over it; when the democracy which had adopted them became merely another province of the Nazi Reich.

They will thus have a full appreciation of what liberty means, perhaps a better one than some of the neighbors they will find in a new land. For they know what it means to have lost it. —Hamilton Spectator.

National Film Board

Government Films Shown To 40,000,000 People Each Year

Canadian government films are shown to 40,000,000 people in Canadian and other countries each year, Hon. W. D. Euler, trade minister, told the House of Commons when his bill to create a national film board was under consideration. The board would be the central authority for direction of moving picture work on behalf of different departments of government and for the distribution of films.

At present more than 6,000 copies of Canadian films were in active circulation in more than 30 different countries, said Mr. Euler. Last year the films were shown to audiences totalling 4,000,000 in the United Kingdom.

Boy In Thamesville, Ont., Has Newspaper Printed In 1795

Kenneth Kenney is a 15-year-old Thamesville lad with a unique hobby. He collects old newspapers.

Included in Master Kenney's novel collections are specimens of three of the earliest publications to find their way into this country. Well-preserved despite their age, they tell their own story of journalism's early trials, successes and failures.

"These three oldest newspapers were given to me by my mother and they started me in the hobby of collecting papers," explained Kenneth. "They've been in the family so long, nobody's certain where they came from."

The three which attract most attention in Kenneth's collection are specimens of The Glasgow Courier, dated Saturday, September 5, 1795; The Times, printed in London, Eng., Wednesday, October 3, 1798, and The Michigan Essay or the Impartial Observer, dated August, 1809.

The Michigan Essay is volume one, number one, of a Detroit publication, printed and published by James M. Miller. Large share of the journal is in French, with many misprints and "f's" used instead of "s's".

Equipment Includes Cook House And Sleeping Quarters For Passengers

Carrying about 70 tons of freight and 20 passengers, the first fully-equipped tractor train ever to attempt the trip left Grimshaw, Alta., on the Great Slave Lake road for Yellowknife, N.W.T.

Operated by the Yellowknife Transport Company, the train left this Peace River district town at about the speed a horse trots. It was composed of three units, each consisting of a high-powered Diesel caterpillar tractor and five sleighs. Each sleigh carried about four tons.

Part of the train's equipment was designed for passenger travel and included a cook house and sleeping quarters.

Flying Laboratory

Oxygen Mask Is Used In Stratospheric Flight

A flying laboratory raced non-stop from Minneapolis to Boston at an average altitude of 20,000 feet in what Mayo clinic scientists described as a completely successful test of a new type oxygen mask designed to make practicable sub-stratospheric flight and air flying at normal altitude.

Mal Freeburg, pilot of the commercial passenger plane which carried 10 other persons, including his wife, said the flight was made at an average speed of 250 miles an hour for 1,140 miles. He described it as a record for fully-loaded passenger planes flying at that altitude without dual-stage supercharged motors.

The plane left Minneapolis at 10:39 a.m. C.S.T. and arrived at Boston airport at 4:29 p.m. E.S.T., an elapsed time of four hours and 50 minutes.

The passengers, wearing masks which look like football players' nose-guards with bulb attached, said they were completely comfortable as they ate a chicken dinner, drank and talked while the plane hurtled through the stratosphere, sometimes at a height of 23,000 feet.

The four-ounce rubber masks, small enough to be tucked into a handbag, were attached to oxygen feedlines. The wearer breathed the oxygen through his nose. Carbon dioxide was exhaled through the nose into a bladder-like rubber bulb fastened below the mask. When the wearer next inhaled, a quantity of carbon dioxide was returned to the lungs "thus stimulating deep breathing," explained Dr. W. R. Lovelace, one of the three Rochester, Minn., scientists who designed the mask.

Duck Breeding Sanctuaries In Western Canada Will Preserve Aquatic Wild Life

To people genuinely interested in wildlife conservation the announcement in New York by Ducks Unlimited, Inc., that wild ducks increased by approximately 1,500,000 during 1938 and will increase by 2,500,000 this year is a statement of greater importance than it appears at first glance. It means that through purely private effort and financing by American sportsmen the aquatic wildlife of the North American Continent is being preserved and developed.

The biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture has for many years striven to lay the burden of a diminishing crop of ducks and geese on American sportsmen. Hunting seasons and bag limits have been reduced, feeding and employment of live decoys have been prohibited and innumerable and virtually unenforceable restrictions have been set up to the end that in some sections of the country duck and geese hunting has been practically ruined. In many sections great marsh properties are all but barren of wildlife because bureaucrats in Washington rule that migrating ducks and geese may not be fed lest they be lured to the hunter.

Sportsmen and native experts in all parts of the United States have long contended that complicated and often useless restrictions would not solve the waning duck supply. This now seems proved beyond all doubt by a convincing report made by Thomas C. Main, general manager for Canada of Ducks Unlimited.

With American dollars Mr. Main, a grizzled Scotch-Canadian engineer who knows his Canada, has established by lease three large well watered duck-breeding sanctuaries in Western Canada. This spring three larger areas of abandoned farm land will have been prepared, comprising in all some 763,000 acres of marshes and lakes scattered over the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

And this is only a beginning. It is a well established fact that 80 per cent. of all ducks and geese which range the United States flyways during the autumn, winter and spring are hatched and raised in Canada during the summer.

For many years these birds have been pushed more and more to the north by the drainage of land for agriculture, a human experiment which has uniformly failed to produce crops. Now water is being restored to these areas and the North American aquatic wildlife is being saved and built up by the contributions of American sportsmen with the co-operation of the Canadian provincial governments.

To contend that hunting restrictions in the United States will save ducks is to ignore the Canadian duck factory, the crux of the situation. Ducks have been hunted since the days of the Pilgrims and are as legitimate American food as the barnyard chicken, which must naturally first be hatched and fed before being eaten.

The vast and fruitful work now proceeding in Canada deserves the support of every American interested in conservation. It will bring back to the marshes, bays and rivers of this country their rightful heritage of wildlife. Ducks Unlimited is a non-profit organization of American sportsmen. Contributions may be sent to national headquarters at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York City. New York Herald Tribune.

Wanted For Collection

Alberta Man Will Pay Five Dollars For A Porcupine Flea

W. G. Hodgson, juniper root carver and flea collector, Drumheller, Alta., has posted an offer of $5 for a porcupine flea. He wants the flea, he said, to fill an order from the Lord Rothschild collection of London.

For three years Hodgson has been trying to find a porcupine flea. Each animal, Hodgson explained, has its own personal parasite. One of the rarest ever to find its way into a collection was taken from a Sea Otter. On one occasion, he said, the Rothschild collection paid $3,000 for a flea.

Developed New Word

University Of Toronto Students Thing "Crud" Better Than "Flu"

This epidemic of influenza, la grippe, cold, sniffles or what, have you that is laying so many citizens low, will not pass into complete oblivion for some time to come. For this ogre of winter-time has left behind a child in the form of a new word. Students at the University of Toronto rebelled at calling everything from a sneeze to an aching back the 'flu, and in a united move for reform developed the word "crud" to describe that feeling of woe and miserableness which accompanies this current widespread discomfort.

It is high time "flu" had a rest. Since the post-war epidemic it has been tagged to more indispositions than any such tiny a word could foster. Besides, the very sound of the word is not a bit like the misery it is supposed to define. 'Flu' sounds the same as flew, which conjures up thought of swift birds skimming through clear skies; or if one thinks of 'flue,' it brings to mind a chimney, then a fireside, then a cosy chair and finally solid comfort. Never could the sound of "flu" bring a picture of fever, headache and downright misery.

But crud! Now here is a word to suit the disposition of a veritable Solomon Grundy. Crud-as flat a group of letters as one could arrange, a word in complete sympathy with a nasal voiced sniffer, it earns its right to a place in the English vocabulary by its completely satisfactory description of that dull, inexpressible useless and this-is-the-end-I'm-sure feeling one has after the elusive germ has taken hold. Next time the bug bites you, just see how perfectly the word reflects your condition, and when some one asks brightly what in the world is the matter with you, just mutter darkly, "It's the crud." —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

March Of Time

The Zipper Supersedes the Hook-and-Eye Fastener

Other things besides time march on. To most of the zipperized women of today the death of their inventor of the hook-and-eye fastener may mean little or nothing. But there will be grayheads to recall the wasp-waist era that gave this form of hold-together its greatest vogue.

Many a smile will break at the recollection of heavy strings anchored to a bedpost or some other convenient piece of furniture, and drawn almost to the breaking point, while a perspiring female at the other end struggled to compress herself into a corset.

With that acrobatic achievement successfully attended to, there was still the gown, usually brought together under one arm as the most inconspicuous place of meeting, that called for hooks and eyes sewed together as closely as possible.

Often the enveloping process enlisted the unwilling services of the nominal head of the household, who probably was having troubles of his own chasing an elusive collar button under the furniture or into a dark corner.

Memories of the sore fingers acquired in these encounters will come back to those who were participants; but the grin that accompanies the thought will be kindled by appreciation of the fact that inventive genius has marched on, and that this once invaluable adjunct of feminine getup is well on the way to disuse. Detroit Free Press.

What He Asked For

"Well," said the lawyer for the defense to his client, "I was certainly surprised at your conviction." "I wasn't; it was all your fault." "All my fault? I put up a magnificent fight for you."

"Yes, an' you kep' yellin' at the jury that you demanded justice for me till they went and give it to me."

Wall Street got its name from a wall of cedar palisades built in lower New York during an Indian scare.

Colony Of Denmark

Commission Being Formed To Study Possibilities Of Greenland

Denmark believes that Greenland, Danish colony since 1774, has a great future.

Is Greenland suitable for emigration from Europe? This has become such a vital question to-day that a Commission is to be formed consisting of experts from England, France, Belgium, Switzerland, as well as Denmark. The minerals, agriculture, industries, marble and cryolite quarries, the reindeer and erider duck are to be studied with a view to creating employment for emigrants to the country.

It is believed that the colonist, if he will go through with the hard experiences of the pioneer and win the land for himself, can make a living there. Through economic systems similar to those which have been successful in the homeland, it is felt Greenland can be developed into a habitable and prosperous land.

Greenland is 1,650 miles in length and 500 miles in breadth, with a population of 37,000 Eskimos, in addition to Danish Government officials. A trade monopoly has been maintained for the protection of the native population. The Danish Government does not seem economic advantage for itself. For some years there has been a deficit on their undertakings. The coastal fishing is confined entirely to the Eskimos, and Danes and Faroe Islanders can only land there by special permission.

The prospects of building up a better travel service are being studied with a view to putting Greenland on the tourist's map. Christian Science Monitor.

Cars For Royal Visitors

Four Of Convertible Type Being Built In Canada

Four convertible, seven-passenger motor cars for the use of the King and Queen during the royal tour are being supplied by three Canadian companies. Two are to be built by General Motors and one each by Ford and Chrysler.

The cars are convertible so that whenever weather permits their Majesties can ride in an open car and be seen more easily by persons gathered along the routes of the procession.

They will be painted deep red, as are all royal motor cars in the United Kingdom. Transportation arrangements are being made so that there will always be two available at each place where a royal procession will take place. The cars will be moved in advance to these cities probably on railway flatcars.

The cars likely will be used in nearly every city the King and Queen visit.

Humble Turnip Featured On Restaurant Menus In South

The Brockville Recorder and Times says: Canadians habitually regard the turnip, even when it is offered for sale with its seal-coat of wax, as rather a despised root, and we have seen some people express indignation when it was presented to them at the table and wave it away with an imprecation.

But our humble turnip is a real delicacy to many of our international neighbors who prize it highly and who, apparently unable to grow it as we grow it, buy it by the carload each year. They call the turnip a "rutabaga" and some restaurants in the South feature it on their menus as we would feature an exotic fruit imported from a tropical clime.

Many consumers have been puzzled by the meaning of the wax which coats these roots in midwinter. This is the process followed in their preparation for market: In the late fall, after frost has sweetened them, the turnips are taken from the ground and placed in pits or root cellars. At a later date they are removed from these pits and sorted for size and shape, being waxed and shipped as required. This waxing preserves their flavor and moisture content and makes them particularly acceptable in warmer climates, such as the southern states.

Might Help Canada

Says Former Prime Minister Bennett Could Assist In Economic Troubles

Now retired from politics, former Prime Minister R. B. Bennett might help Canada apply a cure to its economic troubles by assisting business reform, Hon. Frank Carroll, legislation councillor for Gulf division, told the Quebec Upper House.

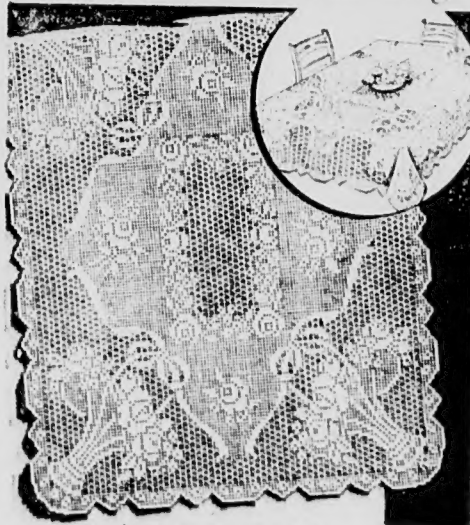

He asked if Mr. Bennett would assist "our business men and the youth of our country to campaign for a clean-up of unethical business methods in Canada."

"If so, he will make not only a name for himself beyond that which he earned to England," said the Liberal Council member, "but he will reinstate Canada's credit now at a low ebb in the greatest financial markets of the world and in the home of capitalistic England, to which we or those who are interested in the development of industry in our province and Canada must look for financial support."

Must Serve One Year

Under an order no girl may obtain private employment in Germany until she has "served her year of duty to the people," about 100,000 are expected to volunteer or be conscripted in the Nazis 1939 program for mobilization of the Reich's woman-power for farm and other duties.

The united ex-servicemen's associations of Canada have undertaken, as a joint voluntary effort, a national survey of its country's 100,000 war veterans. It was announced at Ottawa. Its purpose is to gather information on the number, the location and qualifications of ex-servicemen who, should danger arise from any form of enemy action, would be available to assist the constituted authorities in safeguarding the internal security of Canada.

All national veterans' organizations are linked up in the survey. On their behalf a joint manifesto has been issued over the signature of Col. W. W. Foster, Vancouver, and Col. Charles R. Hill, Toronto, in their capacities as chairman and secretary respectively of the national committee of dominion presidents and veterans' organizations.

The manifesto traces the steps taken by the veterans during the international crisis last September. There was unanimous approval of the suggestion that they place their resources at the disposal of the government.

Developments led to the Toronto conference last January, when the dominion presidents of veterans' organizations accepted the principle of united veterans' action in all matters affecting the welfare of Canada.

"We have reason to believe that the information which will be available as a result of our proposed survey will be welcomed by the authorities," says the manifesto.

It is particularly stressed that in making the survey the veterans are not seeking to organize themselves into "even an approach to an independent veteran force." What services may eventually be performed will be "closely knit into the protective forces of the nation."

Little Theatre Movement

George Skellan Impressed With Enthusiasm Shown On Prairies

Canada's maritimes and prairie provinces are reaping incalculable good from the country's non-professional theatre, George Skellan, English adjudicator, has concluded after a tour that took him across the Dominion and back. Skellan told reporters he found great enthusiasm in the east and prairies for little theatres.

"It is all they have," he said. "I came in contact with any number of groups who have never seen a professional production. Their desire to fill in the lack by their own efforts is almost pathetic and their efforts to fulfill it wonderful."

Lack of skilled direction in both areas, he found, was the main drawback and most successful groups were those benefiting from supervision by someone with professional experience.

"The lack, however, doesn't stop them," he said. "I have literally seen a farmer directing a group in rehearsal for a festival take advantage of a rest to telephone home to see that business on the farm was in good shape."

Skellan said audiences in the two sections were as enthusiastic as the players, and, despite forbidding weather, he saw big houses at Regina and Edmonton. He believed better housing for the non-professional theatre was needed, but paid tribute to accommodations at Ottawa and Halifax.

Canadian Turkeys Popular

Have Become Firmly Established On The British Market

Canadian turkeys continue to be popular in Great Britain, the Canadian exports to the British market from January 1 to February 23, 1939, totalling 5,139 boxes, compared with 200 boxes during the corresponding period of 1938, and with the highest record for the period of 1,784 boxes in 1937. Further, the position in which Canadian turkeys have become established in the British market is shown by the fact that Canadian turkeys have been selling at five cents more per pound than other birds.

The yellow plant grows from sea level in timberline.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE

Director "Crop Testing Plan"

A despatch from Bucharest tells us that Roumania has signed a most extensive trade treaty with Germany.

Roumania has agreed to make available to Germany 90 per cent of her surplus of wheat, (which last year amounted to 82 million bushels), and other agricultural products and oil.

In exchange for this, Germany agrees to furnish to Roumania agricultural and mining machinery, and other goods that the Roumanian people now need. The exchanges will be on a free trade basis.

It will be seen that almost complete free trade now exists between Germany, what was formerly Austria, what was Czechoslovakia, and now Roumania.

This will certainly result in raising the standard of living of all the people in this large European area.

As these benefits are realized free trade practices will no doubt spread perhaps over the whole of Europe.

Where then, one might ask, will stand those countries, such as Canada, Australia and United States, which now hold large unsold surpluses of food stuffs, and which countries are curtailing the sale of these food stuffs by restricting the importation of other people's goods. Would it not be wise in time to note the hand writing on the wall, and to make the distribution of surplus food stuffs easier by lowering those high tariffs which now strangle international trade?

Following factors have tended to raise prices: Demand from China exceeding all expectations -- Winter wheat prospect below normal in many European countries -- Holland taking Argentine and American Pacific wheats -- Continued nervousness over German Polish situation -- England buys substantial quantities of Argentine corn and wheat -- German Roumanian trade treaty will increase consumption of wheat.

Following factors have tended to lower prices: European emergency stocks depress values and prevent normal purchases -- Liverpool importing Brazilian flour -- War risk marine insurance rates increased -- Negligible European wheat demand -- Heavy Liverpool wheat stocks adequate for limited milling inquiry -- Winter rye in fair or good condition in main continental producing countries.

Offer Further Aid in Seeking Justice for Farmer at Ottawa.

"Line Elevators will lend support in seeking justice for the Western producer at Ottawa," said W. E. Robertson, Calgary, president of the Western Grain Dealers' Association, in protesting against the Dominion government's 60 cent wheat guarantee legislation.

In a statement issued, he said: "The Western Grain Dealers' Association, operating some 1,000 line country elevators in Alberta, has given its unqualified and loyal support to the work of the Bracken Committee and, in particular, has supported the continuation of a price of at least 80c for No. 1 Northern, basis Fort William, under a Wheat Board, as no less than ordinary justice to the producers of Western Canada during the abnormal conditions which prevail in the international wheat markets of the world. Any less support is, in plain language, a desertion of the great unprotected industry of wheat-growing which means so much to the national life of Canada and on which Western Canada is absolutely dependent.

"The present proposal of the Dominion government for a 60c wheat price represents an average price for One Northern of approximately 40c on the farm. Notwithstanding any supplementary legislation providing for additional aid to farmers or agricultural districts on a relief basis, the announced policy means that the wheat industry has been completely abandoned to the disaster that must overtake it if it is left subject to international forces which it cannot control, and that Western Canada will be treated as a depressed area and Western farmers as relief recipients.

"We cannot believe that Western Members of the Agricultural Committee of the House of Commons will, if the facts are placed before them, accept any such surrender. The Western Grain Dealers' Association, therefore, will lend whatever support they can to any representations in favor of justice to the Western producer that may be made to the Agricultural Committee of Parliament, to whom the whole matter should, in our opinion, be at once referred."

102 New Bills
Passed By Legislature.

The Alberta government Tuesday was closed with authority to establish a central marketing board and various other commodity marketing boards, enter the fire insurance business, declare pipelines common carriers, fix the prices of petroleum products, and establish public livestock yards.

Bills granting the authority passed by the legislature received royal assent of Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Bowen along with other measures reducing the membership of the legislature from 63 to 57 members, and outlawing certain private debts after July 1st, 1942, that were incurred before July 1st, 1936, unless renewals are arranged.

One hundred and two bills became law as a result of the session of the legislature. Seventy-five were assented to on Friday when the lieutenant-governor visited the assembly and another 27 were assented to when the House was prorogued.

Included in the 75 bills previously receiving assent were measures setting up a three-man permanent board to administer affairs in drought areas; establishment of a central purchasing agency for government department, and others bonding lawyers.

"Of Human Hearts."

Placed in the stirring days of Lincoln, and in America's pioneer settlements in Ohio, "Of Human Hearts," the human drama of a circuit-riding preacher and his family, brings Walter Huston to the screen for the first time since his triumph in "Dodsworth." The new picture, in which James Stewart and Beulah Bondi are teamed with Huston as his son and wife, comes to the Opera House this Friday and Saturday.

"Of Human Hearts," deals with the struggle of beliefs between father and son, and the everlasting love of a mother who worships her boy and also blindly adores the father. Dramatic highlights include the bitter quarrel between father and son, the dramatic moment when Lincoln sets the boy's erring feet on the right path, the reunion of mother and son after the Civil War, and other dramatic moments interspersed with human interest and comedy.

But Story Says Dying Scot Was Saved By Bagpipes

There is well-worn anecdote concerning the Scot who lay dangerously ill in a Chicago hospital, says Allen Reid, in the Ottawa Journal. All hope for his recovery having been given up, he was asked by the hospital authorities if there was anything he would like before he passed away. With no hesitation the Scot expressed a desire to hear the strains of the bagpipes once again. This was, indeed, a novel request from a dying man, and, after a considerable amount of hesitation, it was agreed to accede to the dying man's request.

A piper was found, and brought to the hospital. For fifteen minutes the ward in which lay the dying Scot resounded to the skill of the piper. Then the piper departed, and all seemed well.

The sequel to this story is the most astonishing part of it. To the surprise of doctors and nurses, the dying Scot ceased dying and began to recuperate in a most remarkable manner—but the other patients in the ward died that evening. In other words, to use the modern slang colloquialism, "They couldn't take it."

- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups stale bread, cut in ½-inch cubes

Add chocolate to milk in double boiler and heat. When chocolate is melted, beat with rotary egg beater until blended. Combine sugar, salt and eggs. Add chocolate mixture gradually, stirring vigorously. Add vanilla. Place bread in greased baking dish. Pour mixture over it; let stand 10 minutes, then mix well. Place dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees F., one hour, or until firm. Serve with Butterscotch Hard Sauce.

A Children's Library

Gives Big Thrill To Young People Of Stockholm

Children of Stockholm, Sweden, declare their library in the annex of the Stockholm City Library is the best, possibly the biggest in the world. It has 40,000 books for the young. In the reading room is a bulletin board on which important world happenings are explained with illustrations and photographs. The ceiling of the room devoted to books on geography is curved and bears a painted chart of the heavens. The most popular place is the "Fairy Tale Room." Twice a week a gong announces the presentation of a Punch and Judy Swedish fairy tales, acted by well-known actors and actresses. Children flock to the shows and sit thrilled to the final curtain.

Maple Syrup Prospects

Thousands of Eastern Canada farmers are busy tapping maple trees for the harvest of syrup and sugar and the Department of Agriculture reports prospects good for an encouraging yield of high quality. It is expected some 20,000,000 trees will be tapped, about 1,000,000,000 less than last year due to serious damage caused by last September's wind storms.

A Good Diplomat

Canadian Naturalist Followed Best Plan While In Germany

Ernest Thompson Seton, the Canadian naturalist, in Los Angeles told how he played politics with the Nazis. Seton was in Germany for two weeks on lectures at Bonn. Realizing that he might be spied on every minute and his every utterance reported, Seton and his wife agreed on what they would say about Hitler. They thought up three complimentary things to say, all of which they could say truthfully. The first day they were being served by an attentive waiter they said one of them. The next day they said another and the third day they made the third remark—and were careful not to say anything else. A week later the complimentary things they said about Hitler over their own dinner table were being broadened throughout Germany, and everywhere the Setons went in Germany they were treated as distinguished guests. For all that, Seton says there is a strong undercurrent of discontent in Germany and he wouldn't be surprised to see internal trouble break out there at any time.—Brandon Sun.

Travel On Freighter

Passengers Of Royal Rank Have Used This Means Of Transport

The latest royal personages to travel on freighters are the Crown Prince and the Crown Princess of Denmark, who are travelling from Copenhagen by way of the Panama Canal to San Francisco to see the fair. Their ship is one of the 50 passenger vessels operating between the Pacific Coast and North Europe. Other recent freighter passengers of royal rank were Princess Bernard of the Netherlands and the Crown Prince of Sweden. Many noted people have travelled as passengers on freighters. Among them were Lady Geddes, wife of Sir Auckland Geddes, Claudette Colbert, Noel Coward and Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh.

Gardening

Room Esschthal

Most common mistake made by the new gardener is that of crowding things too close together. In planning layouts it is essential that the mature height and width of the flower or shrub or tree be kept in mind and sufficient space be allowed.

In every reputable seed catalogue and in most special government bulletins there will be found along with descriptions of various plants the height when full grown. This can be used as a guide in the planning. Roughly, space between plants should equal mature height. Thus a shrub like the ordinary white Spirea, which averages about 6-7 feet in height in most parts of Canada, should have 6-7 feet between it and its neighbor and be this far away from walks and almost as far from fence or wall.

Hot Beds

When a large number of early plants are needed, these can be started from seed in a hot bed. The latter consists of a bed of fresh horse manure, which supplies the heat, about 18 inches deep. On this two or three inches of fine soil is placed and after the bed has heated up and then cooled down again (a matter of three or four days) the seed is sown in rows a few inches apart. The bed is protected by rough boarding along the side and on top and sloping towards the south about 10 to 18 inches above the bed is placed a window sash well glassed.

When the plants have developed their second set of leaves they are thinned out and before being transplanted outside they are hardened in a cold frame which is simply a hot bed without any heating material.

Use Good Seed

It is impossible to over-emphasize the importance of good seed. Other factors are practically all beyond control but the gardener has absolute check over this foundation. Weather, soil and location may be ideal but without good seed, specially selected to suit Canadian conditions, the garden is going to be a failure.

On the walls of caves in France and Spain, there are pictures of hunters carrying bows and arrows, and some of these ancient drawings show animals with arrows sticking in their bodies.

CHILDREN'S COLDS

FOR RELIEVING discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Its poultice-vapor action relieves local congestion and helps the youngster relax into restful sleep.

FOR COUGHING and irritated throat due to colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue. It melts, bathes the throat with comforting medication. Also massage on throat and chest.

FOR HEAD-COLD "sniffles" and misery, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air-passages.

SHALL WE DISINFECT?

It is a generally accepted fact that infection does not live in bedding, clothes, old mattresses and other inanimate objects, and that disinfection of such articles is a waste of time and a needless expense. The discovery that diphtheria carriers and mild overlooked cases of scarlet fever and the carriage of infection by sprays from the mouth and nose were the chief routes of transmission in these affections has discounted the value of terminal disinfection (that is the disinfection used at the termination of the disease).

The germs which cause disease in man fail to thrive outside the body unless they exist under conditions of moisture, food and warmth conducive to their life. The only ones that remain active outside the body are those like anthrax and tetanus, which possess spores, and perhaps that of typhoid fever. Germs do not live long in old mattresses, bedding or clothing.

The orthodox disinfection of mattresses and bedding was abandoned in Brighton, England, in 1910. The boiling of sheets, washing of blankets, dusting of bedrooms and scrubbing of floors was substituted. Home contacts of measles have not been excluded from school at Brighton since 1922 and this without any noticeable increase of infection.

In general the foregoing is the policy followed by health officers in this country and in the United States. It is a wise policy. No increase of disease has been known to follow it. It serves to keep children in school without endangering anyone. The course of education suffers less interference. Old mattresses and bedding may be dirty but they do not carry disease.

If you are troubled with gas, sour stomach, or heartburn, your digestion probably needs assistance. A tonic that tends to improve the digestion is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It stimulates the appetite too, and as a result you feel more vigorous. Learn Trench, 292 Bessley St., Toronto, Ont., says: "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery helped to stimulate my appetite and caused my stomach to grow in great shape. After eating I would belch gas, also had sour stomach, and the 'Discoverer' relieved me of this condition and made me feel better in many ways." CHAPTER V. Continued

Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, was flying in a cold rage. He was hurt, disappointed, deeply disgusted. Jim Allison had failed him utterly, and it was a blow, because he was young enough, in spite of his astonishing exploits, to take himself and his career with great seriousness.

He had come to America very earnestly, pledged to study and learn, to take home all he could gather from the nation's wing, and he had counted confidently on Jim Allison.

"I wouldn't think of asking you to break your rule about never taking women up," the American flier had explained, "under ordinary circumstances, but in this case, if you could possibly make an exception I'd appreciate it no end. You see the fact is, Ardine and of course her husband, too—awfully decent chap, Keaton Dana, rather heavy, perhaps, but a prince"—he added hastily under the bleak young gaze—"are very special friends of mine, and she's set her heart on going up for a spin with you."

"I am sorry," the yellow-haired youth said civilly.

"Makes it pretty awkward for me, I dare say. Well, I strutted a bit about what pals we are, and I'm afraid I let Ardine infer that I could fix it up for her."

"I am sorry," Gunnar said again. "I take no women in my ship."

He might well have expanded his pronouncement to say that he took no women anywhere. Sisterless, cousinless, girl-friendless, rigidly reared by a stern grandmother, he had pledged her and himself to keep his mind wholly upon his work until his career was well established.

The night was clear and calm with excellent visibility; his hop to Los Angeles would be without excitement.

He came swiftly out of his musings as the nose of the plane dropped, the whirr of the motor increased and they leaned toward a downward pitch. He pulled on the stick to regain normal position, wondering what freak of air currents caused the small disturbance. He was aware of a slight jar. Had he, perhaps, struck a high-flying night bird?

He was immediately in level flight again, eased off on the joy stick and began to re-establish the course which had been briefly abandoned, but directly he released his pressure the nose dropped a second time.

Incredibly, out of all reason, someone was standing behind him.

There was a jar again, more perceptible this time, and he turned his head to look back through his ship, and found his vision blocked. Incredibly, out of all reason, someone was standing behind him.

His mind refused to accept it. The thing was impossible. It was the figure of a woman!

Then young Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, experienced an anger the like of which he had never known in all his years of living. It was the sort of berserk rage his ancestors knew, trucked by a wily foe, and which they eased with sudden blood. Jim Allison had made mockery of his rule. Jim Allison had flouted him—his friend—to please the whim of his light-of-love; made a fool of him in the eyes of the tipsy wasters at a tawdry roadhouse. His teeth ground together and his breath came quickly.

The woman lurched forward and caught at his shoulder to steady herself, bent closer to speak above the roar. Their cold cheeks touched.

"Oh, glorious—glorious!" she stammered. "I don't understand—Am I here? flying away in the night? Am I still pretending? her teeth were chattering with cold, with excitement. 'In the Stewed Prune? It's so wonderful—so splendid—"

It was not Ardine Dana, but the dark, thin girl with the lost and lonely look he had noticed at the Henry Dana house, whom he had seen again, maudlin with drink. But now her face was white and her eyes blazed with thrilled rapture, and she seemed to be transported with a wild, incredulous joy.

Happy, triumphant over the success of their trick!

"Keep away from me, drunken fool!" he said savagely.

There was a stifled wail behind him but he did not look around. He busied himself with directions. Where—granted that he must forego the pleasure of pitching her out in mid-air—was the first place he could land her? Anywhere he could get his ship down with a semblance of safety!

Unless he carried her all the way to Los Angeles or Glendale, which was his destination—and that was unthinkable—he must apparently detour to a place called Fresno.

A stealthy look, presently, showed him that she had settled herself in a seat, a blanket wrapped around her. Her face was pressed against the window, but she turned and saw him and started to rise again.

"I must tell you," she began urgently, her voice shrill above the motor. "You must listen to me! I wasn't—I wasn't. They gave me something." She started to stand up, to come forward again.

He made an imperative gesture. "Keep back. Do not come here. Stay where you are."

She dropped beside the window, huddling under her blanket, peering out into the quiet sky.

CHAPTER VI.

Miss Pennington always marveled that her charge never wept, even in childhood, but Sarah Lynn was crying now, bitterly and uncontrollably, salt tears running into her mouth, shivering under her woolly coverings.

In spite of the cold, the stinging, biting air, she was seared and shriveled by the flame of Gunnar Thorwald's scorn and contempt.

"Keep away from me, drunken fool!"

The hideous irony of it—Sarah Lynn's, flat-tire in the mad tempo of fourth generation Danavale because she would never take a drink! She looked at his rigid shoulders, at the relentless angle of the head in the sterner classic helmet and absolved him utterly. Why shouldn't he have believed the worst of her, seeing her there in that lighthouse place, heavy-eyed and staggering and babbling?

"I'm not afraid!" she exulted. "I'm not the least particle afraid. I adore it. This won't be the last time I won't let it be. I'm going to fly all my life. It's fun! It's heavenly! It's the kingdom and the power and the glory!"

There was a bump which threw her forward in her seat, and then they were thumping along over a field, terrestrial again, all glory gone. They turned and dived up presently in front of brightly lighted buildings with a big group of people before them. An attendant came running to meet them.

Gunnar Thorwald did not leave his seat. He spoke through the window.

"Thorwald, San Jose to Glendale."

"Gas?"

"Nothing. I land a passenger."

Without looking round, he indicated Sarah Lynn with a motion of his shoulder.

The man opened the door and thrust in his head. "Getting out, lady?"

"I yes, I suppose." Sarah Lynn got to her feet, tripping over the blanket, gathering it clumsily into her arms. The attendant reached a hand to help her.

The Norwegian ace did not turn his head as she went by him.

"I am sorry," Sarah Lynn began unsteadily. Then the words came in a rush. "No, I'm not! I'm glad, glad! It was the most wonderful, glorious—"

The pilot was silent, eyes set forward.

"Look out, lady! Low bridge!" the attendant warned her.

Sarah Lynn, looking at Gunnar, lifted her chin defiantly and struck her forehead on the casing of the low door, and the man helped her to the ground, the blanket trailing. She raged at herself. Must she always be grotesque before him? Always a figure for scorn and loathing?

"Say, is that Gunnar Thorwald? Feller that flew the ocean?" the attendant wanted to know excitedly.

"Yes."

"Well—gosh! Hey, Eddie! That's Gunnar Thorwald! You know the Norwegian ace?"

The other came running. "The deuce it is! Why, sure, that's his ship, all right. Hi, feller!" he waved a beckoning arm. "Know who that is—Gunnar Thorwald?"

Sarah Lynn was aware of a gathering group as the plane took off.

"Can you feature that?" one of the workmen said in a low tone. "Just came down to dump her, huh?"

"Yeah; threw her out like she was a sack of mail."

"And look at her! What's the big idea?"

A large and noisy element was added to the crowd, pouring out of the bright waiting-room, a man in evening dress, a girl in bridal costume, half a dozen men and girls with flowers and old shoes and rice and confetti, all staring at Sarah Lynn.

Speedy Boat

New British Motor Torpedo Boat Fastest of Its Type

With its throttle only three-quarters open, a new British motor torpedo boat, claimed to be the fastest of its type in the world, travelled at a speed of 50 m.p.h. in an unofficial demonstration on the Solent.

Designed by Hubert Scott-Paine, the boat is 70 feet long and is driven by three 1,000 h.p. supercharged engines. It can carry enough gasoline for 1,000 sea miles, and is built to weather all kinds of seas.

What gets Hitler and Mussolini down about the democracies more than anything else is that with their incredible lack of efficiency they still have all the money.

For Sea Rescue

Suggest International Agreement For Indemnity For Saving Lives

Rescue of ten persons from the British flying boat Cavalier is expected by aviation and maritime attorneys in New York to give impetus to a new international agreement to pay indemnity for rescue of lives at sea.

For many years it has been an accepted rule that indemnity for the rescue of a ship applies only to property salvaged and expenses incurred in making the rescue—but not to lives. The 1910 convention on salvage of vessels at sea declares it a "duty" to assist persons in danger at sea.

In the last few years air navigation has created a new situation. It is pointed out that planes carry little else but lives, personal property and postal matter, which are excluded under present international indemnity agreements.

Underground Mail

New York Has Pneumatic Tube System For Quick Despatch

The transferring of mail in New York City from postoffice to postoffice is quite a problem. Mail trucks would move at a snail's pace through the congested traffic. So the postoffice devised a pneumatic tube system to rush the mail through. Beneath the "sidewalks of New York" are over 50 miles of pneumatic tubing. The tubing even goes under the East river to Brooklyn postoffices. These underground tubes carry about half of the mail traffic in the city. The mail is put into shells at a central tube station and shot by compressed air to branch offices at a 25 to 30-mile-an-hour clip. Over 150,000 letters may be sent an hour by this unique means.—The Commentator

If the province is required to match the federal appropriation on a 50-50 basis, it means an expenditure of $500,000 in Alberta this year for construction of highways for tourist purposes.
